Branching Statements

break Statement

break statement

In PHP, the break statement is used to exit from the current loop or switch statement. It is often used within conditional statements to prematurely terminate the loop or switch based on certain conditions. The break statement immediately terminates the execution of the innermost loop or switch statement enclosing it.

break statement

The break statement can be used inside for, foreach, while, and do-while loops, as well as inside switch statements.